

Auld Lang Syne

*Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And never brought to mind?
Should auld acquaintance be forgot
And days of auld lang syne?*

*For auld lang syne, my dear
For auld lang syne
We'll tak a cup o' kindness yet
For days of auld lang syne*

Tree of Silver Tears

Across a distant ocean
Stands a tree of silver tears,
Its rippled branches bending
From the sorrow of our years.

An angel hovers over,
Wiping every fragile leaf,
The way that God will gently soothe
Our throbbing flow of grief.

The angel then collects the tears
And scatters them afar
To sparkle in eternity
Like effervescent stars.

So when we gaze with longing,
Seeking solace in the night,
Our silver drops of pain reflect
The glow of heaven's light.
